Driving a Motor Vehicle

The Department of Infrastructure is the issuing authority for driving licences for the Isle of Man and a record of every driving licence is held in the Register of Driving licences.

If you wish to drive a motor vehicle in the Isle of Man then you must hold a current driving licence and you must drive in accordance with the conditions specified on your driving licence.

The penalty for contravention is a fine of up to £1,000. Road Traffic Act 1985 Sch 3 paragraph 1(1)

You are not permitted to drive or to learn to drive any vehicle category for which you have not yet reached the minimum age. The minimum age requirements are detailed in Table 1.

The penalty for contravention is a fine of up to £1,000. Road Traffic Act 1985 4 (2)

It is recommended that you carry your driving licence whenever you drive a motor vehicle.

Your driving licence explained

Your driving licence takes the form of a plastic photocard containing information about you, your vehicle category entitlement and any current endorsements that you may have. It has a number of security features that are designed to resist attempts at forgery or tampering.

If there are no From or To dates shown against a vehicle category then you are only permitted to drive that vehicle category as a learner driver. If however, the vehicle category is a Staged Vehicle Category and you have not yet passed the relevant driving test then you are not permitted to drive that vehicle category under any circumstances.

Vehicle categories and restriction codes are shown in tables 1 and 2 respectively. Unless specified otherwise, all weights are the maximum authorised mass. Information about driving a vehicle with a trailer is contained in the leaflet Driving licence requirements for towing trailers in the Isle of Man which is available from the Vehicle Test Centre.

Table 1:

Driving licence validity periods

If you have never passed a driving test (in any vehicle category) then the maximum period for which your driving licence is valid is one year from the date of issue.

If you have passed a driving test for any vehicle category then the maximum period for which your driving licence is valid is 10 years from the date of issue. The period will however, be reduced according to your age as follows:-

Your current age	Validity period
16-65	10 years
66	9 years
67	8 years
68	7 years
69	6 years
70	5 years
71	4 years
72 or older	3 years

The validity period may also be reduced to 1, 2 or 3 years if you have a disability or medical condition that could affect your fitness to drive. (see Fitness to drive)

Obtaining a driving licence

To obtain a driving licence you should complete the Application for a Driving Licence DL1 form which is available from any branch of IoM Post or the Licensing Office at the Vehicle Test Centre. You can also download the form at <https://www.gov.im/driving-licences> There is an accompanying leaflet Guide to applying for a driving licence that will assist you with completing your application.

You must complete an application form if you wish to obtain a new driving licence in any of the following circumstances:-

- you wish to learn to drive but have not yet passed a driving test. (see Learning to drive)
- you have become resident in the Isle of Man and you wish to exchange your foreign driving licence for an Isle of Man driving licence. (see Visiting or exchanging your driving licence)
- you have passed a driving test on the Isle of Man and you want to upgrade the vehicle category entitlement shown on your driving licence. (see If you have recently passed a driving test)
- you wish to renew your driving licence. (see Renew your driving licence)
- your current driving licence has been lost, stolen or damaged. (see Replace your driving licence)
- you have been advised by a doctor or consultant that you have a disability or medical condition that could affect your fitness to drive and you have not yet informed us about it. (see Your fitness to drive)
- you have been advised by a doctor or consultant of a change to a disability or medical condition that that you have already informed us about which could affect your fitness to drive. (see Your fitness to drive)

- you wish to remove an expired endorsement(s) from your driving licence. (see Driving offences)
- you are no longer disqualified from driving and where applicable, you have attended a rehabilitation course. (see Driving offences)
- you wish to change your name or address or both. (see Change your name and/or address)

Your fitness to drive

If you have been advised by your doctor or a consultant that you have a disability or medical condition that could affect your fitness to drive then you must inform the Department as soon as possible.

The penalty for contravention is a fine of up to £1,000. Road Traffic Act 1985 Sch 3 paragraph 5A(3)

If you believe that you are unable to drive safely or you have been advised not to drive then you must stop driving immediately. You should also be aware that if you drive and are involved in an accident and it was determined that you had a disability or medical condition that you had not informed us about and that this was a contributing factor, then your motor vehicle insurance may be invalid.

To inform the Department about a disability or medical condition that may affect your fitness to drive or a change to an existing one then you should complete Supplementary Medical Information Form MI1. (see Obtaining a driving licence)

There are accompanying leaflets A guide for drivers with a medical condition and Guidelines for driving following a stroke or Transient Ischaemic Attack (TIA) that provide additional advice and information. These are available from the Vehicle Test Centre.

When we receive your application we will assess the information that you have provided to determine if your disability or medical condition will affect your fitness to drive. In the course of our enquiries, we may consult with your doctor or consultant or an occupational therapist or eye specialist. We may also ask you take a driving assessment.

Depending on the outcome of our assessment, we may restrict your driving licence in terms of eyesight correction or modifications to the controls of vehicles that you drive. In addition, we may reduce the validity period of your driving licence to 1, 2 or 3 years. In more severe cases, we may revoke your driving licence. We will keep you fully informed of our actions and any decisions that we make.

If your doctor or consultant advises you that your disability or medical condition has changed (improved or worsened) and that this could affect your fitness to drive then you must complete a Supplementary Medication Information Form MI1

Learning to drive

If you have never passed a driving test and you wish to learn to drive then you are a learner driver and you must apply for a provisional driving licence before driving on the public highway. (see Obtaining a driving licence)

As a learner driver you can, subject to the minimum age restrictions in table 1, learn to drive the following vehicle categories:-

A1, B, B1, f, g, h, k, l, p, s, w

You are permitted to learn to drive on the public highway however you must pass a theory test before you can apply for a practical driving test.

If you wish to learn to drive on the public highway then you must:-

- display standard “L” plates in a prominent position on the front and rear of your vehicle
- you must be accompanied by a driver who is 21 or older who has passed the test for that category of vehicle (unless it is designed for solo operation) for a period of not less than three years

You must not:-

- carry a passenger when riding a motorcycle
- drive a motor vehicle with a trailer (other than an agricultural vehicle)
- drive at speeds in excess of 50 miles per hour (80 Kilometres per hour)

Further advice and information is contained in the leaflet A guide to passing your driving test available from the Vehicle Test Centre.

A provisional driving licence is valid for a period of one year from the date it was issued. If you wish to continue to learn to drive and your driving licence has expired then you must renew it.

Some vehicle categories are staged which means that you must first pass a driving test in the qualifying vehicle category first. Staged vehicle categories are detailed in table 1.

For example, you can only learn to drive a category C vehicle if you are not restricted by the minimum age requirements and you have previously passed a category B driving test.

If you wish to learn to ride a motorcycle, moped or scooter then you must pass a Compulsory Basic Training (CBT) course at an approved training provider before riding on the public highway. Further information on this is contained in the leaflet Compulsory Basic Training for Learner Riders which is available from the Vehicle Test Centre.

If you have recently passed a car or a motorcycle test

For a period of 1 year from the date on which you passed a test:-

- you must display standard “R” plates in a prominent position on the front and rear of your vehicle
- you must not drive at speeds in excess of 50 miles per hour (80 Kilometres per hour)
- if you pass your motorcycle test at 16 you cannot ride a motorcycle in excess of 125cc until you reach the age of 17.

Having passed a driving test you should apply to have your driving licence upgraded. (see Obtaining a driving licence)

Driving Offences

If a police officer believes that you have committed a driving offence then you may be issued with an Endorsable Fixed Penalty Notice (EFPN). If however, it is likely that you will be disqualified from driving as a result of this driving offence, for example if it involves drink or drugs or you have sufficient penalty points, then you will be ordered to attend a court hearing.

You can request a court hearing if you do not wish to accept the EFPN.

In either case you must produce your driving licence at a Police Station within 5 days and your driving licence will be retained by the reporting officer. You will be given a receipt which you can use in lieu of your driving licence.

Please note that this receipt is not valid outside of the Isle of Man.

If you are unable to produce your driving licence because you have lost it then you must apply to obtain a replacement. (see Obtaining a driving licence)

If you accept the EFPN or a court convicts you of a driving offence but you are not disqualified then you must:-

- pay the fine that is imposed, and
- apply for a replacement driving licence if you wish to continue driving

Your driving licence will be endorsed and you may be allocated a number of penalty points for each offence. Penalty points may be accumulated and if these exceed a threshold (usually 12 points) then a court may order you to be disqualified from driving. Only penalty points from endorsements that have not yet expired when the most recent penalty points are allocated are accumulated. If a court orders that you are disqualified from driving then your accumulated points total is set to zero.

You can apply to have an expired endorsement(s) removed from your driving licence (see Obtaining a driving licence)

Disqualification from driving

If a court orders that you are disqualified from driving then you must not drive under any circumstances.

The penalty for contravention is 6 months imprisonment or a fine of up to £5,000 or both. Road Traffic Act 1985 Sch 3 paragraph 18(b)

If you are disqualified from driving and you wish to resume after the disqualification period has expired then you must renew your driving licence. (see Obtaining a driving licence) If a court has ordered that you must retake a test then your vehicle category entitlement and the validity period of your driving licence will be made equivalent to that of a learner driver driving licence.

If a court has ordered that you must attend a rehabilitation course before you are permitted to drive then you cannot renew your driving licence until you have done so regardless of whether or not the disqualification period has expired. If you wish to attend a rehabilitation course then please contact the Probation Service on 687323.

If you are disqualified from driving and you believe that there are grounds for reducing the disqualification period or removing it altogether, then you should apply to the court that imposed it.

Disqualification from driving – mutual recognition with the United Kingdom and Northern Ireland

If you apply to exchange your United Kingdom and Northern Ireland driving licence for an Isle of Man driving licence and you have endorsements for a serious driving offence(s) involving drink or drugs then your driving licence will be endorsed similarly.

If you are convicted of a serious driving offence involving drink or drugs by a court in the United Kingdom and Northern Ireland and you are disqualified from driving then you are similarly disqualified in the Isle of Man and your driving licence will be endorsed.

Your driving licence will not be endorsed nor will penalty points be allocated for convictions and disqualifications that do not involve drink or drugs. The authorities there may however, keep a record of any convictions and penalty points that are allocated.

Renew your driving licence

You are not permitted to drive if you do not have a current driving licence.

The penalty for contravention is a fine of up to £1,000. Road Traffic Act 1985 Sch 3 paragraph 1(1)

You can make an application to renew your driving licence if it is due to expire within a 2 month period prior to the expiry date. If you wish to renew your driving licence before this then you may be able to do so but only in exceptional circumstances.

If you wish to renew your driving licence but it has been expired for a period greater than 10 years from the current date then you will need to retake and pass your driving test for all of the required entitlements.

Replace your driving licence

If you have lost your driving licence or it has been stolen or damaged then you must replace it as soon as possible.

Change your name and/or your address

If you have changed your name then you should make an application to replace your driving licence as soon as possible. This is free of charge.

If you have changed your address then you should also make an application to inform us as soon as possible however it is not necessary to replace your driving licence. This is also free of charge.

The address you give must be the address where you reside and it must have an Isle of Man postcode. A business, club or hotel address will not be accepted unless it is where you reside.

Visiting or exchanging your driving licence

You are not permitted to drive if you do not have a current driving licence.

The penalty for contravention is a fine of up to £1,000. Road Traffic Act 1985 Sch 3 paragraph 1(1)

If you are visiting the Isle of Man or you have become a resident then you are permitted to drive for a period of up to 1 year using a foreign driving licence as long as it has not expired. You are permitted to drive only in accordance with the vehicle category entitlement and restrictions detailed on your driving licence and it must indicate that you have passed a driving test in any vehicle category.

You are not permitted to drive with or exchange a learner driver driving licence.

If your driving licence was issued by a country where there is a current exchange agreement with the Isle of Man then you can exchange it for an Isle of Man driving licence. If this is a UK Licence then you must also obtain a 'check-code'. To retrieve your check code please go to:

www.gov.uk/view-driving-licence. You will need your NI Number, and your UK driving licence number.

You can only exchange a driving licence that has not expired. The exceptions are driving licences issued in the UK and NI or the Channel Islands and these can be exchanged if not expired by more than 2 years from the date of the exchange application being complete.

If your driving licence was issued by a country where there is no current exchange agreement with the Isle of Man then you must obtain an Isle of Man learner driver driving licence if you wish to continue driving after your driving licence has expired or if you have been a resident of the Isle of Man for more than 1 year.

You must be a resident to obtain an Isle of Man driving licence and you can make an application at any time after you become a resident. If you wish to take a practical driving test then you must obtain an Isle of Man driving licence and you must pass a driving theory test.

The list of countries that issue driving licences that can be exchanged for an Isle of Man driving licence is available at www.gov.im/exchange-licence

Please note that your vehicle category entitlement and restrictions may be altered in accordance with the Department's policies on exchanging driving licences.

Further information on driving tests is available from the Vehicle Test Centre, Tromode.
